PLAYING SAFE

An illustration of the art of playing safe comes in a story of a holdup from Kansas City. It seems that a stranger walked into a lunch room, and asked the proprietor if he would fight if someone held him up, and received the reply: "No sir, I'd put up my hands." The stranger then said, "That's sensible. Stick 'em up" and robbed the restaurant man of $7.

FINE

After a fist encounter with his neighbor, says a news dispatch, John Goodhouse, justice of the peace at Pierre, South Dakota, fined himself $10 and costs and now is serving a self imposed sentence of thirty days in jail.

A girl met an old flame and determined to high-tail him. "Sorry," she murmured when the hostess introduced him to her "But I did not get your name."

"I know you didn't," replied the old flame, "but that's not your fault. You tried hard enough."

Many a woman, who married in hopes that her ship will come in gets nothing but a raft of kids.

"College girls prove they can live on $8 a Week"—Headline—After they've proved it they will probably go back and live on dad.

TODAY'S SHORT STORY

This story concerns an Omaha wholesale house and a customer merchant in an Iowa crossroads town. A shipment of goods received by the customer was rejected as unsatisfactory.

The wholesaler prepared to institute suit for collection and wrote to the railroad agent located at the village about the arrival of the merchandise; to the president of the bank for information concerning financial standing of their customer; to the mayor of the city asking him to recommend a good lawyer to handle their case; and to the merchant himself, threatening suit, if he did not make payment at once. This reply was received:

"I received your letter telling me I had better pay up.

"I am the railroad agent here and received the letter you wrote about the shipment.

"I am the president and sole owner of the local bank and can assure you as to my financial standing.

"As the mayor of the city, I hesitate to refer you to a lawyer, since I am the only member of the bar in this vicinity.

"If I were not the pastor of the only church here, I would tell you to go to hell."

Couple Elope On The Night That
Mrs. Brewer Graduated From High School — Non-Support Is Charged

DANVILLE, June 19.—Mrs. Margery Hufford Brewer of Danville has filed suit in circuit court asking that a divorce be granted her from Maurice Brewer of Stilesville, and that her name be restored to Margery Hufford.

The couple were married May 17, 1928, eloping following the Danville high school Senior play in which Mrs. Brewer had a part. The separation came June 9, 1931.

The complaint alleges that the defendant failed to make a reasonable provision for the support of the plaintiff and she was forced to work as a teacher of music and a saleswoman to maintain herself. It also is alleged the defendant failed to provide a place of residence for his wife, and they made their home with her mother. No mention of the trouble which has surrounded Brewer recently is mentioned in the complaint.

Brewer, who last year was instructor and basketball coach in the Belle Union high school, faces charges of forgery in the Hendricks circuit court. He is free on $2,000 bond.

The forgery charge against the Putnam county teacher was filed by Harmon Hathaway, Coatesville printer, and it is alleged that Brewer forged endorsements to checks made to Hathaway for printing ordered by the Belle Union school. The checks were on an account carried by the senior class of the High School in a Greenecastle bank, and were said to have been entrusted to Brewer to give Hathaway.

The former teacher was also charged with the theft of $100 from a man who roomed in the Brewer home.

Brewer was to have returned to the Belle Union school this fall, but it is understood that the Putnam county school authorities have cancelled his contract.

FOUR HOURS DELIBERATION—SHOWMAN INDICTED FOR GIRL MARKET OPERATIONS

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 18.—The trial of Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire showman, and three others on conspiracy and moral charges ended today in a disagreement of the jurors after twenty-four hours' deliberation. A date for retrial was set tentatively for July 13.

Pantages and Jesse H. Shreve, were charged with conspiring with the alleged operations of a Hollywood girl market. Olive Clark Day and William Jobelmann, to bring Lydia Nitto, a minor, here from Los Angeles for immoral purposes. The trial began May 25 and was placed in the hands of a jury of nine men and three women at noon yesterday.

Edward Summers, jury foreman, told Superior Judge L. N. Turrentine that eleven ballots had been taken and there had been no change in the vote since midnight.

Summers and W. F. Ahrens, another juror, said the vote had stood nine to three for acquittal on every ballot today, although it has swung from eight to four to ten to two during the deliberations yesterday.

The question of Miss Nitto's age, the paramount issue raised by the defense, deadlocked the jury.

One juror said the three women voted for acquittal throughout.

In Putnam county the line is to cross Jackson, Franklin, Clinton and Russell townships, running in a southwesterly direction. Construction of the line will be under the supervision of the county road superintendent if the franchise is granted.

Better Breakfasts

If you want to start the day feeling as chirpy as the little birds in the branches outside your window, include plenty of fruit in your breakfast, and lots of milk and cream. In the following suggested menu you can have top milk or cream on your cold cereal, there is a sauce made of milk on the sausages and you can have cream in your hot beverage. Most people prefer this variety of ways to just drinking milk or cream. Here's the menu:

Iced Cantaloupe
Cold Cereal
Sausage Slices in Cream Sauce
Strawberry Jam
Hot Beverage

Iced cantaloupe is delicious on a hot summer morning, and strawberry jam adds one more fruit to the main dish make a white sauce of two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one and one-half cups milk, salt, pepper and one-fourth teaspoon ketchup. Slice the contents of a 9-ounce can of Vienna sausages thin, and add to the sauce. Reheat and serve on toast. This will serve six people.

Good Coffee

If you are a lover of coffee and want that for your hot beverage, be sure to select one of the brands that is vacuum packed. These retain all their flavor and aroma, and assure you coffee with a kick. Nothing is flatter than coffee that has been exposed to oxygen, allowing much of the flavor and aroma to escape.

TORRIO REPORTED AS CAPONE'S SUCCESSOR

CHICAGO, June 19.—Today's Herald and Examiner says Johnny (The Immune) Torrio has succeeded Alphonse Capone. The proclamation that Torrio had invested himself with the dual robes of gangland leadership, the newspaper says, was posted last night in the haunts of the underworld.

Rumors have been persistent for weeks that the protégé of Big Jim Colosimo had abandoned his Florida estate to intervene once more in underworld activities.

Bullets from George (Bugs) Moran gang guns hastened Torrio's decision several years ago to quit Chicago's gangland warfare.

Twice before attempts on his life were unsuccessful. Thus he gained the sobriquet of The Immune.

It was Torrio who brought Capone west from Brooklyn a decade ago to manage Colosimo's Twenty-second street vice district. And when Torrio abdicated Capone climbed on to the throne.

The newspaper says it was Torrio who ordered Capone to "take the rap" and plead guilty to the government's indictments charging liquor law and income tax violations. On this plea Capone will be sentenced June 30.

Bill placed a mouse in the cage, thinking the snake might be hungry and would make short work of it. But it didn't. Instead, a few days later the mouse began eating the button and rattles off the snake. To save what was left of the snake, Bill had to remove the mouse.

OIL: A Subterranean Transportation System

CHAPTER XIV

THE first oil pipe lines—built in the early western Pennsylvania oil fields—were usually small lines which connected the producing leases with the railroads. They were of the type which today would be termed gathering lines; that is, they gathered the freight for the railroad. Today gathering lines do this too, but their principal function is as feeders for the trunk pipe lines.

The first real trunk line was constructed in 1879, as a result of serious overproduction of oil and the bitter feeling existing between the oil producers of western Pennsylvania and the purchasing and transportation interests. Railroad opposition was great, but the line was completed to the Atlantic Coast, and soon afterward other lines were constructed over the Appalachians. These lines carried the oil to refineries on the eastern seaboard.

New Lines to New Regions

As new oil regions developed, pipe lines were extended and new lines built, until today there is in the United States an aggregate of more than 100,000 miles of pipe line. Probably about 80,000 miles of which consist of trunk lines, resembling the network of steel spread throughout the country by the railroads.

Pipe Lines Resemble Railroads

The pipe line structure of the country is in many respects similar to the railroad system. While the pipe is being laid, pumping stations are erected. Commonly these are about forty miles apart; but in rough country, or for heavy and viscous oils they are built at more frequent intervals. A pumping plant includes engines and pump powerful enough to pump the oil along to the next station.

TRUNK PIPE LINE SYSTEM
The underground pipe line system can transport crude oil for distances as great as 2,000 miles.

The internal combustion engine has been an important development in pumping-station equipment. Each station is provided with storage tanks of a capacity ranging from 10,000 to 55,000 barrels each. A 4-inch pipe line, under a pressure of 800 pounds per square inch, will deliver about 3,800 barrels of average gravity crude oil per day of 24 hours; a 6-inch line, 10,000 barrels; an 8-inch line, 21,000 barrels.

Pressure gauges at each pumping station immediately register any loss of pressure due to serious leakage. When a break is indicated, the engineer instantly telephones the next station ahead and telegraphs the superintendent. Line walkers, corresponding to track walkers on the railroad, hurry out to locate the break; and gangs are always at hand to make necessary repairs. Because of the storage tanks at pumping stations, a break does not necessitate suspension of pumping operations except in the section where the break occurs.

Once in operation, and given the oil to transport, the performance of a pipe line is practically automatic and continuous. It proceeds 24 hours daily throughout the year.

Cheap Transportation
A comparison of pipe line rates with railroad rates for the transportation of crude oil is, of course, in favor of the pipe line, which is favored for quantity shipment and signed for quantity shipment and which, therefore, provides a continuous flow of freight with the minimum equipment.

Due to engineering advances in pipe construction it is now possible to transport gasoline by pipe line, and the gasoline pipe line has come into use in recent years.

TRUCK OIL MOTOR
AIM OF CUMMINS

COLUMBUS, Ind., June 18.—In order to hasten development of a Diesel oil burning engine for trucks and busses, the C. L. Cummins Engine Works here is employing both a day and night shift.

The motor now being perfected is slightly larger than that used in the Cummins Diesel racing car, which was entered in the Indianapolis five hundred mile race on Memorial day and recorded an average speed of 86.170 miles per hour, running the distance without a stop.

The new engine, for heavy duty, will be tested on a truck trip which Mr. Cummins tonight stated would start within the next three weeks. The run will be from New York to Los Angeles, Cal. The engine used in the racing car, Mr. Cummins said, was a preliminary step in development of the heavy duty motor.

The manufacturer maintains that the motor can be used in trucks and busses at 15 to 25 per cent of the operating cost of gasoline motors and that the original cost of the motor would be but slightly more than the gasoline type.

At the conclusion of the truck test run, the success of which is anticipated, Mr. Cummins indicated that his plant would be expanded to permit quantity production.

No effort will be made at this time to adopt the motor to pleasure car use, the manufacturer said.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED
When Tom Evans returns from his honeymoon, he finds his last secretary, whom he has hired, occupying the doubtful position of "contact" girl in a luxurious apartment. Tom is obliged to take his wife to some of the parties, and she becomes too well acquainted with Yates, Tom's boss. She has Tom introduced to junior parties and sent to Boston. Connie, the "contact girl," enters Yates' office in time to hear his secretary order dinner for two at a cafe that night.

Chapter V
As Connie entered Yates' office, she heard the secretary order a table for two at Chavell's that night. She made no comment, but passed into the inner room, where Yates greeted her.

"Where are we dining tonight?" Connie asked.

"Ah—I'm afraid I've got to stand you up," said Yates regretfully. "I'm working tonight."

Connie watched him shrewdly. "That's too bad. I don't like to work so hard, William."

"Well, business is business. V—"

Tom caught sight of Yates dancing with his wife, she laughing and whispering to him.
(Pose by Jameson Thomas, Betty Bronson, Jack Mulhall and Constance Cummings)

don't you take in a show? I'll phone for seats."

"That's a good idea. I'll ask Tom and Vivian to go with me. She watched him closely to see the effect of her words.

Yates was fussed and upset, but tried to conceal it.

"Tom's out of town. I sent him to Boston. We're thinking of opening a branch there."

"Really?" Connie seemed surprised. "You're not going to transfer him there permanently, are you?"

"I should say not. I need him here too much. It's just a flying trip; a day or so to look things over."

"I see." Connie's tone revealed the fact that she saw a lot. She watched him closely as she casually remarked: "Then, I'll ask Vivian. She's probably very lonesome to-night."

Yates flushed and looked very unhappy. He said uneasily: "I thought you didn't like her."

"Oh, I think she's a very clever girl," said Connie with double meaning.

"She impressed me as being rather dull," Yates remarked.

Connie arose to go. She understood the situation perfectly. "On second thought she remarked, 'I'll dine alone. Afterward, perhaps I'll go visiting.'"

Yates was relieved.

Connie went directly to the Evans home and waited for Vivian to come out. The latter tried to avoid Connie; but the girl insisted upon taking Mrs. Evans to her mother's in Connie's car.

Foil Fiends by Training Dog to Eat From Own Dish

With reports of dog-haters at work in many localities, the Chappel Keenel Foundation, Rockford, Illinois, is stressing upon dog-owners the necessity of training their animals not to eat food at any other place than at their regularly appointed eating dish.

There are still some animals having two legs, walking upright, classed technically as human beings, who purposely put out poisoned meat for dogs, cats and the like, the Foundation points out. All instances of this kind should be reported immediately to the proper authorities. Unfortunately, the laws do not provide severe enough penalties for these wretches. In the meantime, the wise course to follow and one that will save possible grief and heartache, is to train your dog to refuse food offered by strangers and to teach him to avoid eating at any time and place.

There is no better way of teaching your dog not to accept food from strangers than to feed him a good, wholesome, well-balanced meal regularly at an appointed time each day, at the same place, and in the same utensils. A well-fed dog is more disposed to attend to his own affairs.

Today, soon after he has eaten his regular meal, take your dog outside. Place some tempting morsel in front of him. Very likely he will lurch forward to seize it. Command, "No," firmly. This may not stop him. Slap him lightly on the shoulders or hind-quarters (never on the head, muzzle or joints) and again command, "No."

Next, let a stranger offer the tempting morsel. Repeat the punishment. Then walk with him through an alley and let him run loose. Keep near him, and the instant he moves to take a piece of refuse or garbage, command "No" and move toward him. It will not be long before the dog will understand what you are driving at, and your worries in this respect will be over for good.

The day in which the dog was looked upon more or less as a garbage can has definitely passed. Nevertheless, states the Foundation, a number of incidents reported recently indicate that there are still on the market dog foods which will not only sicken the animal but menace the health of the children of the household. As safeguard and protection to both dog and owner, therefore, the Foundation urges that no canned dog food be used that does not have the wording, "U. S. Inspected and Passed by the Department of Agriculture" on the label.

During the year Bernard Miller received the Gimbel medal, awarded for "merit in habits, college spirit, application, and sincerity." James Hatfield, Washington, won the Big Ten medal, given for scholarship and athletic prowess; and Joe Zeller, East Chicago; George Belshaw Gary; Rodney Leas, Petersburg; Claron Veeler, Linton, and Miller received the L. G. Balfour awards.

Two more former Indiana university star athletes entered the ranks of Indiana high school coaches this week when Ben Miller and Ward Baker, Mishawaka, joined the coaching staff of the Bloomington high school as assistants. Miller, star forward on the I. U. basketball team this last season, will assist Coach A. L. Phillips with the net team while Baker, former football player, will assist Coach Harold Mumby with his football team next fall. Both Phillips and Mumby were stars at Indiana university in the sports which they now coach.

Baker and Miller also will teach in the high school, with Baker entering the history department and Miller the physical education department.

EXERCISE A PROBLEM FOR BUSY BROADCASTER

Unlike most orchestra leaders who get a lot of unconscious exercise from waving their arms and bending their backs while conducting, B. A. Rolfe, leader of the Lucky Strike Dances Orchestra, who directs by simple movements of the thumb and fingers of one hand, must get his exercise and recreation elsewhere.

Since he first began broadcasting the Lucky Strike program more than two and a half years ago, Rolfe has had an unbroken record of continuous service on the air, even though these broadcasts have been increased from one to three programs of dance music a week. With these three weekly microphone appearances, and the incessant preparation and endless rehearsal which they require, Rolfe has little spare time for himself. Naturally, it has been a serious problem for him to regulate his daily life in order to preserve his health as well as perform the many duties that are constantly arising in connection with his radio work.

When an enquiring reporter recently asked B. A. Rolfe, what he did in his spare time, the round leader chuckled and said, "That reminds me of the story about the hired man who was asked why he didn't get himself a steady job and who replied that his boss didn't give him enough time off."

The Lucky Strike maestro has placed himself under the care of a physical director, experienced in conditioning famous show people, who puts him through a series of exercises regularly and subjects him to a vigorous rubdown. In the summer time, Rolfe derives unending pleasure from his motor cruiser in which he often takes members of his orchestra for a quiet sail.

In addition to these recreational pursuits, Rolfe takes long walks with his two dogs, "Lucky" and "Trouble," drives his high powered car into the country, and whenever the opportunity presents itself, attends as many concert and symphony orchestra performances as possible, and when he has lowered his thumb on the last number of a Lucky Strike program, he usually crawls into bed with a detective or mystery story and "relaxes."
